

-38-

ABSTRACT

A method and device for generating a template that includes determining whether there are consecutive events of a plurality of sensed events having first characteristics, and if a predetermined number of events of the plurality of sensed events subsequent to the consecutive events are identified as first selected events having second characteristics, the template is then generated from the first selected events.